It's the burden of being an expert. Nothing easy comes your way.

From managing four million post-dated cheques to modifying a client's international software, we've had our share of challenges. What has stood us in good stead is our fourteen-year focus on banking and financial services as our area of specialization.

A focus that has paid us back in an unparalleled wealth of knowledge and insights into the financial sector. And we've put these to good use. By creating some of the most sought-after financial software for the market. And by creating innovative customized solutions for our clients.

From India to Singapore, Mongolia to Mauritius, Australia to USA, major banks and financial corporations find working with us more rewarding. They believe we understand their business better, and therefore, respond to their needs better. Saving them time, effort and money. We complement our expertise with a kind of commitment that's rare in this business. Which partly explains why our clients rarely leave us.

So if you're looking for an IT solution to do the impossible in financial services, come to someone who's been making it possible for fourteen years.
